Like to keep this list of Australian Non-profit Organisation's who can be put to good use if they ever need any financial support. It seems Animal Aid only supports themselves so to be able to also support other organisations who need the same thing. ACF 13-13-13 Australian Quarantine and Inspection ServiceBudget 2013 The Department of Agriculture and Water Resources is committed to ensuring that Australia remains a strong partner in international trade. The first thing we do in the Department is protect Australia's interests. We do this by working to stop pests and diseases from entering our borders, and also protecting our farmers and growers by stopping unauthorised movement of live animals and products, which also helps maintain Australia's reputation as a healthy and productive nation. The department is also responsible for our quarantine and plant health services. These critical public safety services ensure that Australia's communities remain free of communicable diseases and other harmful pests. Budget 2013 - A significant part of the department's core funding is provided by a wide range of partners and stakeholders. The Australian Quarantine and Inspection Service has received $237.2 million of its overall budget, or 9% of its general government funds, from Commonwealth sources.
